A Program of the Capital Area Planning Council

April 9, 2004

TO: Aging Advisory Council Members
FROM: Glenda Rogers, Director
RE: Older Americans Month Activities

As you may already know, May is Older Americans Month. As a member of the Aging Advisory Council, I am asking you to promote Older Americans Month in your county in a couple of ways.

- Enclosed is a an Older Americans Month Resolution that you can take to your County Judge and County Commissioners and ask that they acknowledge May as Older Americans Month. If you are representing a county that has more than one Aging Advisory Council member, please coordinate your efforts. If you are successful in getting a Resolution and would like AAA staff to attend a signing ceremony, please coordinate dates with Ray (contact information below). Enclosed is an example of how this type of activity can get the word out through the media.
- Enclosed is draft material for a newspaper editorial. It is quite lengthy. You may want to take parts of it and personalize it for submission to your local newspaper(s) to educate the public about Older Americans Month. Once again, if you are representing a county that has more than one Aging Advisory Council member, please coordinate your efforts.

If you would like any of this information in an electronic version for ease in customization, please contact Ray Glenn at 512.916.6062, Ext. 6062, or toll free 1.888.622.9111, Ext. 6062, or email: rglenn@capco.state.tx.us. He will be happy to get you the material in a Word document.

Thank you for your support of this agency and your efforts to recognize Older Americans Month.

FUNDED BY THE TEXAS DEPARTMENT ON AGING

Older Americans Month, 2004

A Proclamation

Advances in medicine, public health, science, and technology are keeping Americans healthier and adding years to our lives. As our population of senior citizens continues to grow, our Nation remains dedicated to fulfilling our promises to these valuable members of our society. This year's observance of Older Americans Month, "Aging Well, Living Well," recognizes the important contributions of older Americans and the network of services that support them. Older Americans continue to work in a variety of jobs, from teachers, to engineers, to business owners and entrepreneurs, and in so doing bring invaluable experience and leadership skills. Additionally, their wisdom, strength, and compassion reflect the character of our great Nation. During this month, we honor our seniors and thank them for the lessons they teach us and the strong values they instill in families and communities throughout our country.

Serving as examples to others, throughout our Nation every day, older Americans are engaging in acts of compassion. Over a half million members of the Senior Corps are volunteering their time and talents to help those in need. Retired doctors, nurses, police, and firefighters are helping communities prepare for emergencies, and countless other older Americans are bringing comfort and care to their families and neighbors. These individuals understand the importance of service, and their efforts are helping to build a more welcoming society. Many food banks, clothing distribution programs, and other social service activities of faith-based and community organizations could not operate without the senior Americans who volunteer in these efforts.

Seven million older Americans and their families are currently being served by a large network of Federal, State, local partnerships, and thousands of volunteers. The services provided by these groups make it easier for older Americans to remain in their homes, communities, and the workplace, which helps preserve their dignity and independence.

Williamson Co.
NOW, THEREFORE, Commissioners CT, do hereby proclaim May 2004 as Older Americans Month. I commend our older citizens for their many contributions to our society. I further commend the network of organizations, service and healthcare providers, caregivers, and millions of dedicated volunteers for their daily efforts on behalf of our senior citizens. I encourage all Americans to honor their elders, to find opportunities to address their needs, and to work together to reinforce the bonds that unite families and communities. I also call upon all our citizens to publicly reaffirm our commitment to older Americans this month, and throughout the year.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this 27 day of Apr, in the year of our Lord 2004.

(PRESIDING)

approved by Commissioner Greg Boatright, presiding
